As a result, the plot of Old-New Land is rather mediocre. One final note: The translation and editing of this book is TERRIBLE. The translation from German into English, done by Lotte Levensohn in 1929, is simply not very good. She used archaic or awkward expressions, even by the standards of 1929.

His last literary work, Altneuland (in English: The Old New Land, 1902), is a novel devoted to Zionism. Herzl occupied his free time for three years in writing what he believed might be accomplished by 1923. Though the form is that of a romance, it is less a novel than a serious forecast of what could be done within one generation. The keynotes of the story are love of Zion and insistence upon ...
